Gilda's Club Noogies Go To The Mavs Game

The group from Gilda's Club posing with JET Terry and the NBA's reigning MVP Dirk Nowitzki following the Dallas Mavericks game at the American Airlines Center

On Monday, December 17, the Dallas Mavericks played host to the Orlando Magic in a head to head NBA regular season match up. Thanks to the tickets provided by Jason Terry of the Dallas Mavericks, a group of children and volunteers from Gilda's Club were able to attend the game that night. The Woodall Foundation contributed to this outing by providing each child with a hot dog, soft drink, and box of popcorn to snack on while they watched the Mavericks defeat the Orlando Magic. WAY TO GO MAVS! Following the game, the group was able to meet Dallas Mavericks stars, Jason Terry and Dirk Nowitzki for a picture and autograph session.

Celebrating One Year of a Healthier Community

One year ago, the Woodall Foundation gladly matched a grant awarded to The Caring for Children Foundation by the Dallas Mavericks. This contribution provided the organization with funding for a tenth custom vehicle to add to its fleet of mobile immunization units.

Through the foundation's Care Van Program, medically underserved children and their families are given direct access to immunizations and other health services. This is accomplished by the specially equipped vans that patrol the community and promote the importance of being vaccinated. During its first full year in commission, the Care

Van, sponsored by the Woodall Foundation and the Dallas Mavericks Foundation, provided 27,877 immunizations for 14,446 children throughout Dallas, Tarrant, Collin and Denton Counties. These figures well exceeded the Caring for Children Foundation's goals set for 2007, and they are eager to capitalize on this success during the upcoming year. 17th Annual Bryan's House Open a Huge Success

Compass Bank and the Addison Rotary Foundation hosted the 17th Annual Bryan's House Open Golf Tournament on September 10, at the Gleneagles Country Club in Plano. Despite the rainy weather and a delay in start time, the Bryan's House Open proved to be a success once again. This four-man team scramble event offered participants an array of prizes for their play on the course. There was also a live auction following the tournament that featured four floor seats to a Dallas Mavericks home game donated by the Woodall Foundation. Also donated to the event's silent auction by the foundation, was a suite at the American Airlines Center for three Dallas Stars' hockey games. In total, the tournament raised over $170,000.

Woodall Foundation Helps Reward Deserving Volunteers

Many non-profit employees are unpaid volunteers that donate their spare time to the service of others. To reward this valuable service, the Woodall Foundation provided an Admiral Level suite at the American Airlines Center to the volunteers at Bryan's House and Gilda's Club. On Friday, December 28, these volunteers were treated to a performance by the Trans-Siberian Orchestra in the comfort of a luxury suite. Some of the volunteers from Bryan's House were accompanied by a few of the children, one of whom is visually impaired but posses an absolute love of music. Everyone in attendance enjoyed the show and was reminded that good deeds are always rewarded. Thanks for everything you do!
