

Helping to build a brighter future for Dallas children

The Woodall Foundation is excited to unveil its partnership with the Texas Discovery Gardens renovation at Fair Park. For more than 30 years, the gardens have provided an invaluable educational resource to local schools. Texas Discovery Gardens is the successor of the non-profit Dallas Garden Center that was formed in 1941 and is located adjacent to The Science Place.

Encompassing more than 230,000 cubic feet at completion, the Rosine Smith Sammon's Butterfly House and Insectarium will be one of the world's largest live butterfly exhibits and serve as the centerpiece for the newly renovated facility and gardens.

With the $250,000 donation in December, the Woodall Foundation is sponsoring the elevators for handicap access and the grand staircase to the focal point of the gardens; the butterfly house and insectarium.

"Once inside the butterfly house, visitors will walk among more than 100 species of free-flying tropical butterflies year-round."

More than 40,000 school children visit the gardens every year. The Woodall Foundation plans to sponsor one or more "free days" for Dallas area children in order that every child has access to this wonderful educational experience.

Thanks to all those that have spent more than five years to launch the $7M project and to make this renovation and dream a reality.

3rd Annual Bradfield diaper Drive

December was the third year Bradfield Elementary has supported a diaper drive for the children of Bryan's House. Once again organized by Bradfield Spanish teacher and Woodall Foundation Board member, Clorinda Pantely, this years drive was a huge success. This also marks the first Christmas season for Bryan's house new Executive Director, David Thomas. For the past thirteen years David served as Executive Director of T-CARE in Houston. With a passion for improving and maintaining the standards of child care in Texas, David makes a valuable addition to the Bryan's House family. We welcome David and look forward to working with him in 2005.

Love For Kids Christmas donation

Each Christmas season Love For Kids sponsors an event for 3,000 disadvantaged children between the ages of 6 and 12 years. The entire group of kids is transported to a local ranch for a day of celebration. Every child at the event receives a toy collected over the last year through various fund raisers and events. This year, 100 children also received a Woodall Foundation Dallas Mavericks logo basketball. Woodall Foundation would like to thank associate Skip Muller for putting us in touch with such a wonderful organization.

Happy holidays and New Year to everyone!
